

ToxicWave V₂

"Making the impossible easy..."
Program: Hybrid Wave

The ToxicWave mixes up a surfboard "based" outline with the advantages of a twin tip stance. You can ride the tail backwards in order to go through the line up, but you will ride on a full rounded, TUE rail and lifted nose. A perfect balance for onshore conditions!

The classic ToxicWave shape in collection for the 4th year (!!!)

The toxic is a Hybrid Wave board. This means it has a tail and a nose like on a directional board, so an outline like a classic surfboard, but it has a full twin tip stance, so you can keep your feet in the same position like in a twin tip board, but you can use the tail and the nose to wave-ride.

This feature is achievable thanks to a different fins configuration and a different rockerline. On the tail the board has three fins and a very pronounced rockerline, while on the nose it has 2 fins, plus a classic scoop in the front and a recess that allows to cut the water when you use the nose as a tail.

The reduced thickness of the toxic wave allows to have the board with a very low volume in the middle, that is between a twin tip board and a wave board.

This thickness allows to have enough floatability on the board when waveriding, but combined with the thinner rails allows to have enough control when you use the full rail of the board.

So: thinner rails and slightly thicker middle allows to have a board that is a perfect cross-over between a surfboard and a twintip board.

has a new version called ToxicWave 2, built in a different technology, and a completely new outline and rocker line, more suitable for lighter winds and smaller surf. A solid sign of proven performance with a new concept.

Technology: EPS Hi density with Full wood sandwich top and bottom.
